The Mobile Learning Festival conference will be a platform for sharing information on contemporary developments in the area of mobile learning, featuring innovative uses of these technologies in Hong Kong educational institutions and beyond.

The speakers, panel members and presenters, all experienced education professionals, will provide insight into the latest technologies which have the potential to transform education and how they are being used to support and develop learning.

Aims: To share best practices, promote partnerships and inform on contemporary developments in the area of mobile learning.

Audience: Researchers and educators from Elementary, Primary, Secondary and Tertiary sectors. We also welcome educational media publishers, instructional designers, and software/hardware developers and telecommunication professionals.

Call for participation

Presentation is sought on following broad topics in the area of mobile learning:

- (1) Pedagogical approaches and design of mobile learning activities
- (2) Design of Apps, E-books and other mobile learning content
- (3) Mobile technology integration with Social Networking, Cloud Technology and other Web 2.0 possibilities for teaching and learning
- (4) Case Studies of Mobile learning in schools and universities
- (5) Research related issues and reports

Each presentation will last 20 minutes followed by 10-minutes Q&A. Please submit an abstract of 200-300 words to <http://web.edu.hku.hk/mlearning/styled/register.html> or atcwang@hku by 10 May.
